

Shadow Skulpt

This sculpture formalizes a figural chimera shifting through time and space. Shadows, projected from a singular object, are traced through the course of a day, indicating the tangential shift of an object as the ground on which it stands rotates in space (ie. an object on a rotating sphere). Five shadow tracings are scaled to size, fabricated into acrylic light reliefs, and arranged into a sculptural form. Solid surfaces and colors twist into temporal passages of light and form. The piece transforms physical daylight during the course of a day into the expressions of a figure rotated in time.
